SUBCOMMITTEE ON INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND FINANCE OF THE KIC

Value of work: Participation in the meetings of this subcommittee has been of marginal value to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce. It should be noted, however, that our role in the work of the subcommittee has been primarily one of providing basic data, rather than obtaining assistance in the analysis of the Soviet economy's trade and financial situation.

Should subcommittee be continued: Yes, assuming its functions could be clarified and that, as a subcommittee, there is a job for it to do in the field beyond that now being carried on by its members as individuals.

Future work: (1) It should search out the real gaps in this field of intelligence and formulate some plan for meeting them; (2) it should attempt to develop agreed methodology for adjustments to basic trade statistics for use by all Government agencies working on Sino trade; and (3) it should more effectively keep the subcommittee informed of the work being done by its members.

Faults and Recommendations: The subcommittee's two major faults appear to have been a lack of continuity and a lack of any well defined objectives. The subcommittee, if continued, should be more than a clearing house for projects of individual members.
